Technology

The whole machine shell is made of recycled environmentally friendly materials, and the metal texture is maintained through special processes
The touch screen production adopts cyanide-free electroplating process, and the wastewater treatment compliance rate is 100%
Biodegradable lubricants and detergents are used in the assembly process
The packaging system uses honeycomb cardboard instead of foam plastics, reducing the packaging volume by 60%
Establish a complete old machine recycling system, and the recycling rate of key components reaches 95%

Selling Points

Borderless curved screen - breaks the limitations of traditional flat-panel displays and brings a surround visual impact. Whether it is watching a movie or designing work, the extended sense of the picture makes the content come alive.
Minimalist art form - the streamlined body with integrated molding and metal base is not only a productivity tool, but also a sculptural decoration for modern homes.
Scene-based audio and video linkage - the screen curvature and stereo field are designed in coordination, the sound and image positioning is more accurate when playing games, and the human voice dialogue is clear and prominent when working.
Hidden functional aesthetics - all interfaces and heat dissipation holes are cleverly hidden in the curve of the body, and there is no visual interference on the front, which is a healing choice for users with obsessive-compulsive disorder.

Theory

The curvature of the curved screen simulates the curvature of the human eye's natural field of view, reducing edge distortion. Algorithms compensate for image stretching so that the image is evenly distributed on the curved surface. The integrated injection molding technology of the screen and the body eliminates seams, and the touch layer uses pressure sensing rather than capacitive to avoid accidental touches on the curved surface. The built-in gyroscope can dynamically adjust the curvature of the displayed content to adapt to different viewing distances, achieving an "active fit" visual experience.
